

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
January 8, 2014

AMT CELEBRATES 75 YEARS OF CERTIFYING EXCELLENCE

(Rosemont, IL): American Medical Technologists (AMT) is proudly celebrating 75 years of serving the allied health community.

“AMT was established in 1939 because of the need for skilled personnel in the laboratory arena,” says Christopher A. Damon, JD, AMT’s Executive Director, “since then, we have utilized our core competency in high-stakes certification testing to grow and expand to other allied health specialties.”

AMT currently provides certification services for 9 different professions: Medical Technology, Medical Laboratory Technician, Medical Assistant, Phlebotomy Technician, Medical Administrative Specialist, Dental Assistant, Medical Laboratory Assistant, Allied Health Instructor and Clinical Laboratory Consultant. It is also home to over 60,000 members, offering continuing education and other products and services to support their professional and personal development.

“We’re very proud of all that we have done for the allied health community” says Mary Burden, MT(AMT), President of AMT, “our continued growth is indicative of AMT’s responsiveness to the needs of this sector. We believe that it’s truly made a positive impact on the quality of patient care.”

As AMT celebrates its 75 years of existence, it not only looks back on its long and rich history, but also stands ready to tackle the future challenges attendant to its mission of “Certifying Excellence in Allied Health”.

For more information on AMT, please visit: www.americanmedtech.org, email: mail@americanmedtech.org or call: 847-823-5169.

#

American Medical Technologists is a nationally and internationally recognized certification agency for allied health professionals. In existence since 1939, AMT is also a membership association, providing continuing education and other services to over 60,000 members. AMT is accredited by the National Commission for Certifying Agencies (NCCA) for all its competency-based examinations.