

AMT Member Spotlight

Brittany Kuck, RMA

At the Carolina BioOncology Institute in Huntersville, North Carolina, patients know they can always count on exceptional care from AMT-certified Registered Medical Assistant Brittany Kuck. The clinic, which treats mainly Stage 3 and 4 cancer patients, provides patients with unique access to nationally recognized clinical trials. The small clinic size creates a family-like atmosphere that allows Brittany to develop rewarding personal relationships.

Brittany says she remembers something special about each patient, from birthdays to pet names. She strives to give each patient the best day possible by always keeping visits fun and light.

Brittany's AMT certification reminds patients of her competence and commitment to quality care.

"My patients amaze me with their cheer and positivity," she says. Brittany loves interacting with patients and being able to provide them with a positive experience, for which she says patients are genuinely grateful. From bringing in doughnuts to asking about their friends and family, Brittany gives each patient personalized care.

Certified: Compassionate

Her co-workers say Brittany's comforting and compassionate personality always shines through and her patients know and trust her. Brittany's AMT certification reminds patients of her competence and commitment to quality care.

In her spare time, Brittany likes to spend time with her energetic 2-year-old son and two pit bulls or go skeet shooting. Inspired by the compassionate nature of her work, Brittany is even considering nursing school.

American Medical Technologists (AMT) is a certification agency and membership association for allied health professionals. Our members are why our quality certifications are making a difference in healthcare, and we are proud to highlight the work they do in spotlights such as this one.