

AMT Member Spotlight

AMT is the national certification agency and membership association of allied health professionals. Our members are the reason our quality certifications are making a difference in healthcare. Read about the characteristics that set AMT members apart.

Ebony Reynoso, RMA

AMT-certified Registered Medical Assistant at Mount Sinai Dubin Breast Center in NY, Ebony Reynoso considers her patients as family. "My family has always been my support system, so I want to be that for my patients," she says.

Interested in the medical field since she was 5 years old, Ebony has carried that passion throughout her career, always chasing a challenge. Ebony currently assists with diagnostics, surgery, medical and radiation oncology, and post-treatment support.

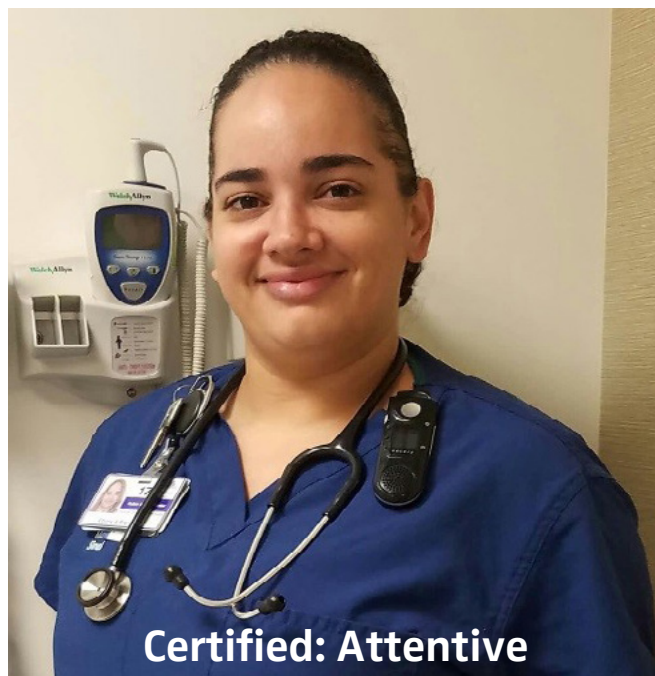

Ebony meets with patients of all different backgrounds, and derives satisfaction from learning their stories. From screening to treatment to survivorship, Ebony strives to be as attentive and encouraging as possible with every patient.

Ebony's AMT certification assures patients she is knowledgeable, and also provides her with unique opportunities. She calls her AMT certification a "stepping stone" to a multitude of career paths.

"My family has always been my support system, so I want to be that for my patients."

Ebony Renoso, RMA (AMT)
Mount Sinai Dubin Breast Center
New York, New York

In her free time, Ebony enjoys spending time with her family, especially her two sons Nicolas and Alexander. Ebony plans to pursue her Bachelor's of Science degree in Nursing and is currently looking into accelerated nursing programs. Ebony says she wants to stay in oncology and is also interested in health care administration.

American Medical Technologists
10700 W Higgins Rd. Suite 150, Rosemont IL 60018
Phone: (847) 823-5169 | Fax: (847) 823-0458
www.americanmedtech.org

© 2017 American Medical Technologists. All Rights Reserved.

